A new Australian EuroCave team is revolutionising wine storage for local lovers of wine

French company, EuroCave, invented the wine cabinet more than 25 years ago and now specialises in the preservation and service of wine globally. Here in Australia, wine-devoted husband and wife team, Craig and Tania MacPhee, recently took over distribution rights for EuroCave, delivering the ultimate home cellaring solution for lovers of wine.

The MacPhees are bringing new items from the EuroCave range into this country. Foremost would have to be cellar conditioners that will revolutionise life for all those wine collectors converting existing rooms in their homes into cellars. This simple and effective way to control temperatures means basements, garages, attics or spare bedrooms can all become cellars ... and you don't even need an electrician to install the unit.

EuroCave also offers its world-famous cabinets as well as racking systems. Cabinets are available in myriad finishes, designs and sizes to suit all kinds of Australian interiors. Whether one lives in a snug city apartment or a rambling country home; there is a system and a look to suit all tastes. In addition, clever EuroCave designs mean clients can choose cellarage solutions suited to their collections — whether for magnums, champagne bottles or standard bottles. EuroCave wine cabinets are designed to take care of the six essential criteria for optimum wine preservation: constant temperature; slow and continuous natural ventilation; specific layouts; vibration-free operating; appropriate humidity and total darkness.

To date more than 50 million bottles are being stored in EuroCaves throughout the world. As the inventor of the wine cabinet concept, EuroCave is the only company in the world to devote all its knowledge and experience to the preservation of wine. Continuous improvements and innovations are always being introduced. For more information freecall 1800 733 621
